

Lorie J. Schmidt

Lorie J. Schmidt is the Associate General Counsel for Air and Radiation at the US Environmental Protection Agency. She has worked in the federal government on a wide variety of Clean Air Act issues for almost 25 years.

Most of her tenure has been in the Executive Branch, where she has held numerous positions in both EPA's Office of General Counsel and in the policy office of the Office of Air and Radiation. In her current position, she heads the Law Office within EPA's Office of General Counsel that is charged with providing legal advice to the agency on the development, implementation and legal defense of all Clean Air Act regulatory programs, including the setting and implementation of the national ambient air quality standards.

From 2005 to 2011, she worked in the U.S. House of Representatives as Senior Counsel for the Committee on Energy and Commerce. She was the chief staff architect of and advisor on the cap-and-trade structural provisions of the American Clean Energy and Security Act, the comprehensive climate change and energy bill that passed the House in 2009. Prior to EPA, she worked for a private law firm in Washington, DC.

Ms. Schmidt received her J.D., cum laude, from Harvard University in 1984, and her B.S. in Materials Science Engineering, with honors, from Purdue University in 1981.
